Irving Stone, original name Irving Tennenbaum, (born July 14, 1903, San Francisco—died Aug. 26, 1989, Los Angeles), American writer of popular historical biographies. Stone first came to prominence with the publication of Lust for Life (1934), a vivid fictionalized biography of the painter Vincent Van Gogh.

Irving Stone | American author | Britannica

Born Irving Tennenbaum, he was seven when his parents divorced. By the time he was a senior in high school, his mother had remarried. He legally changed his last name to "Stone", his stepfather's surname. Stone said his mother instilled a passion for reading in him. From then on, he believed that education was the only way to succeed in life.

Irving Stone - Wikipedia

Stone begins with Charles just out of school—waiting to begin his career as a cleric, his heart belonging, however, to beetle-collecting. Then comes the offer to be the naturalist on a world voyage: Charles feels ""faint with astonishment and shock"" (throughout, he shakes and quivers like a Barbara Cartland ingenue) but manages to win his dear father's blessing for the trip, with help from Uncle Josiah Wedgewood.

THE ORIGIN Irving Stone was renowned for his biographical novels of great men and women of history — men like Vincent van Gogh (Lust for Life) or Jessie Benton Fremont (Immortal Wife.) He also wrote some conventional biographies, as with Jack London (Sailor on Horseback.)

Review of The Origin - Chris Winter

The Origin is a biographical novel of the life of Charles Darwin written by Irving Stone. Darwin was a geologist and biologist, and could be considered the father of evolutionary theory. The novel begins with Darwin at the age of 22 and follows him through the Voyage of the Beagle until his death in 1882. Stone took five years to research and write the novel and consulted numerous Darwin scholars and even Darwin's descendants in order to write his version of Darwin's life.
